Miscellaneous News and Notes

Research During This Period

Mostly I went through Ordnance records and records of overseas commands. This turned up a large volume of shipping tickets for rifles and pistols shipped to Springfield, Rock Island, and San Antonio Arsenal in the mid-1930s. I am still working to get this data into the computer; consequently, the diskette update and newsletter have been delayed.

My volunteer project to index and straighten out the Civil War volumes at the Archives continued through this period and is expected to be finished in May. I have found most of the "missing" (misfiled) volumes and also discovered some new data. If I have been unable to furnish soldier data for you because of misfiled volumes, please renew your request.

Infantry Board Reports

I came across a complete set of and index to the reports of the Infantry Board for the 1916-40 period. The listing of these reports has been added to our list of publications. The reports themselves are voluminous; and having just finished a large copying job for a researcher, I have decided that I will no longer take on copying jobs for others. I am trying to find a private individual who is willing to take on such jobs, to avoid the delay that occurs in filling reproduction requests to the Archives; in the meantime, I will be glad to furnish Archives reproduction request forms.

All Quiet on the Legal Front

We went to mediation with the U.S. and Army attorneys over the M1 rifle sales records, and they agreed to retrieve the records from the Corporation for Civilian Marksmanship (CMP).

During the discovery process, I was furnished a listing of M16A1 rifles conveyed to the CMP, and I hope also to obtain a listing of the 137,000 M1 rifles transferred to them. These will be added to our data base in some form.

Our attempt to gain access to the M1903 rifle sales records which are under control of the Army Center of Military History is also progressing.

Sincerest Form of Flattery?

It was brought to my attention that some enterprising person in Barrington, Ill., is producing "letters" for Civil War guns by serial number. I was given a copy of one of these letters, and it is obvious that the writer (who does not sign his name) is merely extracting the data from diskettes that he has purchased from us. Our diskettes do not contain the name of the soldier that the arm was issued to; so what his clients get for $10 is essentially a line out of one of our serial number books, with directions to contact Archives personnel for further information. I have spoken to several archivists in the Military Reference Branch about this, and they are not really qualified to go into the books for a regiment and dig out serial number data; if they were, I would have them do it for me.

I don't know if there is anything illegal in what this person is doing; but it is at least unethical to use another person's work for profit, without giving him credit.

Rebuilt Service Model Ace

I have recently come across an interesting piece and wonder if you have any input on it.

The pistol is a Service Model Ace, serial number SM 1640. The strange thing is that the frame was once a Remington-Rand or Ithaca frame. It appears that the Service Ace frame may have been damaged at one time and that a replacement frame was fitted to the original Service Ace top end at Rock Island Arsenal. The entire pistol was then parkerized and the "RIA" was stamped on the frame, below the serial number. Have you ever seen or seen reference to anything like this?

<http://www.freeyellow.com/members2/rock-hillordnance/index.html>

I haven't seen one, but it doesn't seem too unusual.

Serial nos. 1638, 1639, and 1641 were Navy pistols, and it is almost certain that no. 1640 was also issued to the Navy originally. Probably it was lost and became rusty or damaged, was then picked up by the Army and reconditioned at RIA.

Another Converted M1922 Rifle

A recent inquiry in the Newsletter about the writer's M1922, M2, Springfield raised some questions in my mind about my own rifle.

I purchased it in 1969 from an NRA member who acquired it through the DCM. It was still in the original Arsenal cardboard shipping container, which I still have. The top of the breech is marked:

U. S.
SPRINGFIELD
ARMORY
CAL 22 M2 ✓ APPROX $\frac{1}{16}$ " HIGH
1333 A ✓ ← APPROX $\frac{1}{8}$ " HIGH

The stock is figured black walnut, with grasping grooves and full pistol grip. The stock is marked on the butt [SA] about 1 1/2" high, and the circled P proof on the front of the pistol grip.

The metal is a gray black parkerizing. The bolt is polished bright but does not have the serial # engraved on it; only the letter "M-2" on top and to the rear of the extractor. The barrel is marked behind the front sight with "U.S.", ordnance bomb and date "7-37".

The bore is mint and rifle extremely accurate at 50 yds. It came with a M1907 leather sling (marked "Boyt 4?") and blackened steel front sight cover.

My questions are, was this rifle an original M1922; was it converted to M2 because of its original model; and what would the barrel date have been if an original M1922 .22 rifle? I would like to know more about this rifle and whether it was issued to a Regular Army unit or ROTC unit.

H.M.D., Tennessee

We have no information on this rifle, but it was probably sold to a school or civilian rifle club originally. The [SA] mark on the butt indicates that it was overhauled at Springfield Armory, but this could have been done after it had been converted to M2. Chances are it was rebarreled and converted because the original 1922-dated barrel became defective.

Spurious Inspector Marks

As a collector of early Springfields, Model 1903, the following information may be worth publishing as a CAVEAT to other collectors.

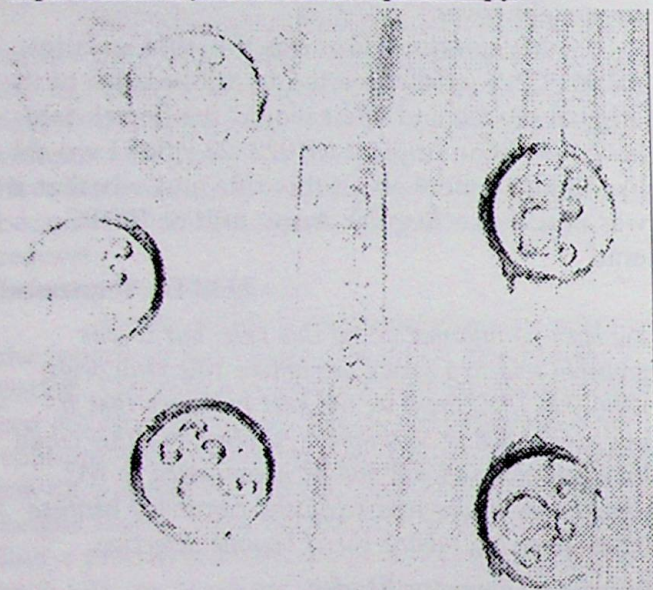

There are a group of individuals in the Columbus, Georgia area that have been enhancing weapons for the past few years mainly by Parkerizing. A substantial number of these weapons have been 03s and 03 A-3s.

Recently one of these individuals has been purchasing new Replica 03 stocks and using them on older barreled actions. There is no crime in mating a replica stock with an original barreled action, as long as the finished item is offered as such.

A crime is perpetrated, however, when this individual becomes creative and applies bogus final inspection and firing proof marks to these stocks and passes them off as original rarities or scarcities. This fact is witnessed by the attached photo copy showing practice punch marks in a small length of pine 2x4.

I recently discovered this when I purchased a 1910 Springfield from this party. I disassembled the weapon at home only to find that the upper handguard was a very recent replica. Calling to voice my anger I was assured that another, correct handguard would be sent immediately. The replacement handguard arrived three days later, packed in a box, supported by 2 small pieces of pine 2x4. One of those pieces is represented by the attached photocopy.

My second phone call resulted in much stammering on the other end of the line and an offer of immediate refund if I returned the gun, the box and the pieces of 2x4 which were used in the shipment.

There is a definite crime perpetrated here and I believe it to be FRAUD BY DECEPTION, which is prosecutable in most, if not all states

I received my refund and much valuable learning. I have purposely not used the names of the individual involved in the hope that their experience with me will bring a halt to this criminal activity.

M. W., Alabama

I doubt that publicizing this will stop them. Maybe I'm cynical; but I'll bet if you published their name and address, it would result in them getting a lot of business from collectors sending in their stocks to be stamped or re-stamped.

These people are mostly preying on beginning collectors, because nearly all experienced '03 collectors can recognize a repro stock, with or without stamps. But I am sure most of us have seen stocks that have been sanded down to the point that there is hardly anything left of the finger (excuse me, "grasping") grooves, yet the cartouche and proof marks are pristine.

The worst thing is that these guys are usually clever but not too smart; so before long, you'll see these script P marks turning up on type "C" stocks and other places they don't belong.

Early Krag Carbine

- 1) U.S. Carbine (Krag) serial #21222
- 2) Overall length 41.2" - Barrel 22.0" - Stock 30.0" which is accurate & correct for this weapon.
- 3) Front Sight Base - dovetailed.
- 4) Inspectors cartouches - JSA 1896 - correct style circle "P" & 41(?).
- 5) Bolt - M/1892.
- 6) Extractor - M/1896.
- 7) Sleeve - M/1896 without stud.
- 8) Sideplate - M/1895.
- 9) Safety - 11mm in width, 5½mm thick (as close as I could measure it).
- 10) Cocking Piece - M/1896.
- 11) Cut off - Type Apr. 30th '95.
- 12) Band (Barrel) correct M/1896 w/high hump protector.
- 13) Firing Pin - M/1896.
- 14) Handguard - correct carbine M/1896.
- 15) Receiver Markings - 1894 - Springfield Armory - 21222.
- 16) Stock - M/1896 thicker wrist with no cut-out for oiler.
- 17) Barrel - slightly thicker @ muzzle than Rifle.
- 18) Rear Sight - with range adjustments to 1800 yards(?) - carbine type elevation knob - Sight Leaf as well as Base marked with "C".
- 19) Front Sight - appears to be a 1901; a little higher with exposed "C". - ?
- 20) Underside of barrel is double "V" proofed + P.
- 21) The overall wear on all parts is very consistent, with no replaced or mixed parts evident.

Any information you can supply on the above weapon would be greatly appreciated, as this is a lower Serial Number than is presently recorded. I would value your opinion on this piece, as you are an expert in this Field. Hopefully, you have this serial number in your archives.

T. W. J., Georgia

Sorry, we don't have this number in our database. Not counting the sight calibration carbines, we have one carbine reported with a lower number (20152, 1st Cavalry).

This carbine seems to be correct except for the sights. The M1896 rifle rear sight was calibrated to 1800 yards (2 versions), and it is possible that the leaf on your carbine has been marked with a spurious "C". You didn't mention whether the top edges of the slide and slide cap are cut away around the notch, as would be correct for the carbine sight.

Hopefully, one of our other Krag enthusiasts will comment on some of the other features of this arm.

Trapdoors in WWII

I have had your serial numbers series for quite some time, and some information you relate in Volume 2 in regard to U.S. Model 1884 & 1888 .45/70 Springfield rifles, donated in 1943 from the Army to the Navy to the Coast Guard for use in the beach patrols interests me. It would seem that if this rifle was service-used in World War Two, that rifle model would be the longest used service rifle in U.S. history! And yet, I don't recall ever reading anything about this. I have tried inquiring of the Coast Guard historian, but of course they have nothing! I am presently trying for a Signal Corps photo of some kind from the U.S. Army Military History Institute at Carlisle, Pa.

Have you got any suggestions as to where else the arming of these Coast Guard beach patrols may be covered?

thorsrig@win.bright.net

I don't think you will find anything in the Coast Guard records about these patrols, because I don't think they were involved. My memory is weak in this area; but I think these patrols were written up in Gun Report or some other journal, but I don't have the reference. Perhaps one of our subscribers will know. Although .45-70 and .50-70 Line Throwing guns were made obsolete in the Coast Guard in 1936, it appears some Springfield .45-70 LT guns continued in use in the Navy into WWII.

Another M1922 Converted to M2

Last weekend I bought a M1922 that had been converted to M2. Serial number is 1865A. The M2 is stamped exactly as indicated in J. W. W.'s letter in the Oct. '97 issue. The rifle is now parkerized and in an M2 stock. It still has the original barrel dated 1-23.

I also have a sporterized (before I bought it.) M1922 M2. The sn of it is 1741A. Barrel date is gone with the 4 inches of barrel that was cut off. I suspect it was a replacement barrel as "Long Rifle Cartridge Only" is on the barrel. That marking is missing from my other two M1922's. The M2 stamp on this, no. 1741A, is above and to the left of the serial number.

Your response to J. W. W.'s letter influenced me to buy the rifle last weekend. I had first turned it down as being undesirable due to the modification to M2, came home did some research, and decided it was desirable.

More on M2 Bolt Handles

W.R.'s comments in the last issue of U.S. Martial Arms Collector regarding the number of Cal..22 M2 rifles produced with bolt handles without provision for headspace adjustment have indicated collector interest in refining my round-figure estimate of "approximately 3800" as published in the original issue of my book in 1957 and as given, along with the reference to such rifles with serial numbers above 4750, in the revision of 1971 and in the otherwise much further revised The '03 Era of 1994.

The "rounded" approximation of 3,800 derived from the fact that the adjustable bolt handle assembly was approved for manufacture sometime in mid-1934, roughly concurrent with the end of Fiscal Year 1934 on 30 June 34. So it seemed possible that a batch of M2s could have been finished and tooling then changed shortly before starting another batch that brought the FY 1934 total to 3,808; or more likely that there was some limited additional production beyond 3,808 before the tooling change. My mentioning rifle No. 4750 in the later editions made it obvious that there were more (perhaps 1,000 more) than 3,808, rather than fewer, though possible spare receiver production precluded accurately quantifying that amount to produce a new estimate.

But I now have the Annual Reports of the C.O. of Springfield Armory (reproduced early in 1992 in Arsenal of Freedom). In addition to confirming the Ordnance figure of 3,808 M2s produced by the end of FY 1934, they show that in FY 1934 the Armory had also produced 403 M2 bolt assemblies and 837 bolt handles --- and that 900 M2 rifles were in process. So the total of all M2 bolt handles that had been produced by mid-1934 was sufficient for the production of 5,048 M2 rifles without headspace adjustment!

During the years of the Great Depression from 1929 to the advent of World War II in 1939, it would have been almost unthinkable to not get the use out of this production, so the non-adjustable "first stage" handles were used on the 948 M2s produced in FY 1935, for a total known M2 production before FY 1936 of 4,756 (above the No. 4750 I once had). Ten bolts were used in FY 35 in converting Cal. .22 M1s to M2s, leaving 282 for use in FY 1936.

In FY 1936, 282 of the 700 M2s that had been "in process" at the end of FY 35 were supposed to have been completed using the balance of "first stage" bolts on hand, leaving the final 18 of the only 300 M2s produced in FY 36 for completion when the adjustable "second stage" bolt handle assemblies reached production in that Fiscal Year. (FY 36 ended with 498 "second stage" bolt assemblies on hand, as well as 1,000 bolt handle assemblies and 977 bolt handles, even after converting 566 Cal. .22 M1922M1 rifles to M2s.)

So "first stage" M2 production was 5,038.

There having been no M2 production in FY 37, DCM M2 sales in 1936 were from production before mid-1936, of which only the last 18 rifles produced would have been with adjustable bolt handles and were unlikely to have been among those rifles that had been shipped to the DCM for those 1936 sales. The DCM, therefore, undoubtedly sold just 51 "first stage" M2 rifles, the highest serial number of which was 5555. That this is nearly the highest serial number for "first stage" M2s is evident from the fact that a virtual "block" of 47 parkerized M2(NRA) rifles, from 5581 to 5630, probably actually initial FY '38 production, were "second stage" rifles sent to the DCM in time for late 1937 sales.

With the hope that this analysis of information now available will be of interest to your readers, I am Yours Aye, Clark S. Campbell.

I'm not sure when the adj. headspace feature was approved, but a memo dated Sept. 25, 1934, stated that they were being manufactured and will be subject to requisition about Jan. 1, 1935. A memo from SA dated Sept. 10, 1934, described the adj. headspace feature and stated that "all new rifles will have the bolt so adjusted, when issued, that the headspace will be minimum, .043-in.". A directive from the Chief of Ordnance dated Nov. 16, 1934, gave the policy of converting all War Department small bore rifles, when requiring overhaul, into M2 adjustable headspace. It was also suggested that SNL B-17 (which listed all parts for the M1922 series) be revised to show preferred and usable parts for each model, with a statement that preferred parts will only be supplied on the exhaustion of the existing stock of usable parts.

At the beginning of FY 36, SA had 200 .22M1 rifles from civilian rifle clubs on hand for conversion, and another 102 were authorized to be converted. A memo from the OO dated Aug. 1, 1935 directed that these 302 rifles be supplied with bolts adjustable as to headspace. It seems strange that Springfield would be producing new rifles with old features, while at the same time fitting old rifles with new features; this could be explained by the fact that the "first stage" bolts had larger locking area, so maintained headspace longer, and were selected/corrected to have minimum headspace before they left the Armory.

Cal. .30 M1922 Rifle

A note of possible interest concerning the Model 1922 Heavy Barrel Target Rifle, .30 cal.:

Each of the two which I have examined had a very small 2-digit number stamped into the barrel near the front scope mounting block. In one case, original appearing blocks were still attached to the barrel, and each block had the same number (in the twenties, if I recall correctly) in its rear surface. In the second instance, "53" on the barrel, but the blocks were missing.

I feel it possible that all M1922 HB rifles had assembly or fitting numbers on both barrel and blocks, in which case the number of rifles produced can be deduced from the highest scope block fitting numbers observed by collectors.

D. N., Alaska

Thanks for the information. The Ordnance correspondence is somewhat unclear on the number of these rifles that were produced (100 or 110). Ten each were to be issued to the International, Cavalry, Artillery, and Infantry teams, leaving 60 available for sale. Ten were specially made for sale to the State of Massachusetts, and it appears that these were separate from the 60 sales rifles. Unfortunately, it seems that many of these sales occurred before recordkeeping resumed at the start of FY 1923, so we have no record of them.

Incidentally, we recently wrote a letter on the very first recorded post-WWI DCM sale, stargauged rifle no. 1245253 sold to Henry Lyman of the gunsight company on July 5, 1922. ♀

Caution!

While we take reasonable measures to ensure the accuracy of serial number data reported here and in our other publications, there is a certain error rate associated with the transcription and entry of the large amount of data we are handling. Therefore, you are advised against paying premium prices for firearms based on a listing alone, without a supporting letter. In all cases before furnishing letters, we go back to the original records and confirm the data in the listing.

Guns "Lettered" During Current Period

The following firearms were documented during the period covered by this issue. If you would like to get in touch with the person a letter was written for, send us your message together with a stamped envelope with blank address. We will affix a label and forward your message. There is no guarantee that you will receive a reply, of course; but we write quite a few letters for dealers, who would no doubt like to hear from someone interested in a particular gun. Make sure that your message contains the serial number and model of the gun you are interested in, and that you furnish separate messages and envelopes if you are interested in more than one. THIS OFFER, FOR GUNS IN THIS ISSUE, EXPIRES ON JULY 1, 1998.
